

Mundok Migratory Bird Reserve

The Mundok migratory bird reserve, located in the wetland on the West Sea of Korea, is an ideal place for energy supplement and relaxation for the birds migrating thousands of kilometres. Every year over 80 thousands of birds of about 120 species visit this reserve.

In many countries people put colorful rings around their legs for their conservation and observation. Such birds are often seen in this reserve.