

Doctors in Charge of Households

Doctors at clinics in the residential quarters in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea are in charge of a certain number of households each, and they regard it as a principle to prevent diseases by regularly checking up the health of the people under their charge and inoculating them in a responsible manner.